"If the mystic succeeds he has everything he needs -
even if he should become an outcast of society.
In case he fails he fails entirely, totally and miserably.
Nothing to hold on to: no funds tucked away, no lobby,
no social network to fall back on, no craft or science in which he can be called an expert. Only the soul - ah, but the soul went out of fashion sometime in the late 20th century..."

(From "Letter to an American friend" , Summer 2000)

"Every day it rains
on the jasmin blossoms
and yet the jasmin blossoms
unperturbed" (Haiku early summer 2000 - Ungererstrasse 108, Munich)

"Who was that man who walked away (who just got up and simply walked away)?"
(Songline - from a song about a God-intoxicated person - 1982)
